

GLASS IS LIKELY TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Says It Is Probable That He Will Enter Race at Proper Time.

TALKS ABOUT RAILROADS

Believes Bryan Will Be Nominated, but Favors Daniel if There's Any Chance.

BY WALTER EDWARD HARRIS.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.—The likelihood of Representative Carter Glass being a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the governorship to succeed Governor Swanson is very strong. Mr. Glass is in the city tonight.

"I think it probable," was his reply to the direct question as to whether he would enter the race. Pressed for a more extended and definite reply, Mr. Glass said there were several considerations which would operate to affect his decision. He did not care to discuss these for publication. But he is keeping a close watch upon public events in the State, and his discussion of every event of recent occurrence shows that his knowledge of what is going on in Virginia is more than simple information; that they are facts from which he is drawing deductions. It is also indicated in the conversation of Mr. Glass that one of these deductions may be his own candidacy.

"What do you think of the order of the Corporation Commission fixing railroad fares at two cents?" I asked.

"I have not given the subject sufficient study to say whether the order is wise and just," replied Mr. Glass. "I read the order with interest and care. I was struck by the fact that the commission says in the order that the actual value of the property of the Southern Railway in Virginia is $45,000, and of the Norfolk and Western upwards of $50,000. Yet each is assessed at $15,000 when it comes to taxing them."

"I do not propose to criticize the commission, but I should like to know by what method the commission, when assessing the roads for purposes of taxation, reached the conclusion that $15,000 was the proper value. It seems to me that a good deal of railroad property in the State is being untaxed."

Will Nominate Bryan.
"I think Mr. Bryan will be the Democratic nominee for the presidency," said Mr. Glass. "This has been indicated for a long while. But it is a fact that utterances of the Democratic press indicate there is a very general sentiment that the Democrats would do wisely to nominate Senator Daniel. Of course, I am for Senator Daniel if there is the slightest chance of nominating him."

Mr. Glass said "Major" Daniel, like all good Virginians, who refuse to recognize that the civil title is higher than the military title, conferred while the Senator was a soldier under Jubal Early.

Some Other Contests.
Mr. Glass did not care to discuss for publication the contest which is being fought between State Senator Thomas and ex-State Senator Don P. Halsey for the Democratic nomination to the Senate from the district composed of Lynchburg and Campbell county. This fight is said to be waxing in intensity, with both sides claiming the victory.

The fact that the fight is being waged at the home of Senator Daniel, and that Mr. Halsey is the nephew of the Senator, and Mr. Thomas is opposed to re-election of Senator Daniel, lend interest to the fight. Mr. Thomas, however, has said that in voting for a Senator as a member of the Legislature he will be guided by the instructions which the Democrats of the State give at the primary for the nomination of a candidate. This should eliminate the senatorial question from the contest, but it does not appear to have done so.

The fight for the senatorial nomination from the district composed of the counties of Nelson and Amherst is warming up; in fact, it has been bubbling for some weeks. Senator Strode is being opposed for re-election by Mr. W. K. Allen of Amherst, who is making a very active canvass. His friends claim the fight is steadily in his direction, but friends of Mr. Strode are equally confident. It is probable that the divergent claims of the two sides indicate pretty clearly the closeness of the contest. Both men are lawyers of character and ability. Mr. Strode, who is counsel for the defense of Judge W. G. Gwynne, has made a good reputation in the Senate, and is standing on his record.

JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION.
An Acoustic.

(Written by the Senior Class of Chestnut Hill High School.)
Just through the months of balmy weather.

A great World's Fair will call together many people from far and near. Eager for all they can see and hear. Something of interest for every one. There will be found, ere they stay is done.

Often in wonder they'll surely say: What world-marvels are in array? None disappointed need need turn away.

Even the war trappings there to see. Xerxes and Caesar might rise to see. Princes and rulers, both high and low. Offer their best for the naval show. Should such a meeting rouse and keep interest and friendship kind and deep? To bind the nations gathered there into a brotherhood strong and fair—Oft in the future the world will tell No other people have wrought so well.

POPE PIUS LOVES THE SIMPLE LIFE

Hates Formalities and Etiquette, and Is Democratic in Style.

SINECURES ARE ABOLISHED

Likes Simplest Cooking, Abhors Show, and Is Regular in His Habits.

No more ardent lover of the simple life exists than Pope Pius X., about whom a book has just been published, called "Pius X. and the Papal Court." It is generally known that Pope Pius disregards all formalities that are not absolutely necessary to his position; but the anonymous writer of this book who seems to be particularly well informed as to the habits and mode of life of the Pope, adds some interesting information. He tells us that at about 5 o'clock in the morning the Pope's bedroom attendant, Sili, enters his room, but, unless His Holiness is ill, he finds him already up and reading his breviary. His custom through his long papal life, at 6 o'clock Pius X. says mass in a simple little oratory, served by two Monks. After having played for a while in the little chapel the Pope has his early breakfast, which consists of a cup of coffee and rolls and butter, and directly afterwards, if the weather is fine, he walks in the great gardens of the Vatican for an hour or so.

Least Possible Etiquette.
At 9 o'clock the Pope is in his study, where he receives his Secretary of State, Cardinal Merry del Val, then the heads of the great congregations through which the church is ruled, and then other visitors. The audiences of Pius X. are of the simplest character, and surrounded with the least possible etiquette. In old days the splendid reception rooms were full of chamberlains, guards, and attendants, but now only a few servants and a Monsignor or two are to be seen. The present Pope receives people of every class, even the most humble, and sometimes poor peasants from his native village of Riese are to be seen there, in garments anything but suited to a court ceremony.

Punctually at 1 o'clock Pius X. dines. Since the seventeenth century it has been the rule for the Pontiff to eat alone, but Pius X. sometimes invites his private secretary, or other members of his household to join him, and on being respectfully remonstrated with for this breach of etiquette cheerfully replied that as Urban VIII. had the right to make this rule, he (Pius X.) had an equal right to abolish it. Pius X. eats most simply and frugally, and the Pontiff's meals differ little from those that were served to the parish priest of Salzano. When Pius X. was first elected he was astounded at the number of servants in the Papal kitchen, and exclaimed, "Surely it is not necessary to have seven cooks in order to make me a little soup?"

Sinecures Abolished.
The Pope likes the simplest Italian cooking, and his menu usually consists of soup or macaroni, a plate of meat, cheese and fruit, and on Fridays the Pope often eats a dish of haricot beans or "polenta," the maize flour which is the staple of life to many Italian peasants. After supper the Pope sometimes reads, and is generally in bed by half-past 10. In all the arrangements of his life Pius X. uses the same humble simplicity. The author says that under his predecessors there were Monsignors, who were paid so much a month and had rooms in the Vatican, whose sole duty was to hold the Pope's hat when he went out in the Vatican gardens, or who carried the stick or umbrella of the Pontiff, and there were others whose functions were hardly more important. All these sinecures have been inexorably abolished by Pius X., notwithstanding the lamentations and protests which this action caused.

NOVEL SUIT.

Kills Man On Exclusion Train and Holds Railway Responsible.

BRISTOL, VA., June 1.—Witnesses are being summoned here for a peculiar suit for damages, which is to be tried in the Federal Court at Greenville, Tenn., next week. The style of the suit is M. S. Bennett vs. the Southern Railway. On an excursion train on the Southern two years ago Bennett cut Walter Kelsey, a Bristol young man, with a knife, inflicting a wound from which Kelsey soon died.

Bennett was tried for murder, but was acquitted, the evidence tending to show that Kelsey was intoxicated and was imposing on Bennett. After his acquittal, Bennett brought suit against the railway for damages in the sum of $20,000, alleging that, but for a disorderly excursion, for which he claimed the railway was responsible, he would not have been placed in the position that he had to kill a man. The railway will resist the action of Bennett in a positive manner.

Hold Photograph Social.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
SPENCER, N. C., June 1.—The Southern Railway department of the Y. P. C. A., at Spencer, held a unique entertainment Thursday night, known as a photograph social, which was largely attended and quite a success. Photos of prominent persons were exhibited and prizes awarded to those successful in guessing the names of the largest number. Reasonable refreshments were served by the ladies.

Effective at once, J. R. Thomas was on yesterday elected manager and treasurer of the Spencer House-Purcelling Company, of Spencer. The concern is doing a large furniture business.

Compliment Professor Taylor.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
SALISBURY, N. C., June 1.—Professor Nelson V. Taylor, of the faculty of the Salisbury graded school, was this week called to Richmond, Ky., to a position as teacher in the State Normal College at that place. The call is taken as a compliment not only to Professor Taylor, but likewise to North Carolina's teaching profession, and while it is not known what he will leave his native State, Professor Taylor has agreed to teach in Kentucky during the summer.

Suit Goes to Federal Court.

BRISTOL, VA., June 1.—The suit of Dan Hurley, administrator, against the Bristol Gas and Electric Company and the Bristol Fueling Company for alleged damages in the sum of $25,000 for the death of J. W. Hill, who was killed recently by a live wire, has been transferred from the law court at Bristol to the Federal Court at Greenville, Tenn.

Novelty Coats of French Linen

Something entirely new for street and automobile wear. Long linen Coats, with light blue or black Repp collars; others with real leather collars and cuffs, in a beautiful shade of tan. Exceedingly stylish, $11.50, $13.50 and $13.98.

25 Chiffon Panama Suits, $12.98 $23.50 Values,

Fine quality Chiffon Panama, in black and navy, high class tailoring, Eton Coats lined with white satin, tailored straps, silk piping down front and back and over the shoulders; trimmings of wide, fancy silk braid and ornaments; plaited skirt, sizes 34 to 44.

These suits have retailed at $23.50. We have but twenty-five left, and to-morrow twenty-five women can each secure a handsome spring and summer gown at nearly half price, $12.98.

Four Special Values in Wash Goods, 12 1/2 yard

There's so many good things in this department that it's no easy matter to pick out a few and say they're better than others.

We'll not attempt that, but simply say that these four fabrics are representative of the excellent values that the Wash Goods Department is full of.

Colored Linonette Suitings
34 inches wide and the best linen finish cloth, made to sell for 12-1-26 yard. Looks like an all-linen at half a dollar a yard.

Arnold's Lace Stripe Batiste was woven to sell for 18c, but we secured it low enough to sell for 12-1-26c.

Fine lace stripes, in black and navy, with dots and small white figures.

Navy Blue Swiss

with white dots and Black Lawns with white dots—both popular, thin stuffs for summer—better perhaps than you've seen lately, for 12-1-26c yard.

New Dress Skirts, $10

Something especially handsome in fine mesh French Voiles, box-plaited, with wide bands of black silk lace on panels. Full width, and all lengths to 44. One of the dressiest styles of the season, at $10.

Huck Towels $1.35 and $1.50 dozen

We haven't had any Towels for some time at low prices that equal these in value.

The prices are decidedly cheap, but the Towels themselves are just the opposite.

Boarding-house and hotel-keepers should snap these up at once.

Prison Life of Jefferson Davis, 50c.

Dr. Craven, who was the surgeon in attendance upon Mr. Davis at Fort Monroe, has given in this book an absolutely accurate account of the great statesman's life while in confinement.

The book has been indorsed by leading Southern men. Publisher's price, $1.20. Our price, 50c.

Aren't These White Goods Beautiful?

If we've heard that remark once, we've heard it a thousand times during the last few days.

To see the goods is to buy them, for women well know that they can't get anything any better anywhere else, and it's a chance that in all the South there's values just as good.

Mulls and Swisses, 29c yd

Mercerized and beautifully embroidered, nearly two dozen different patterns, and each yard representing goods that were imported to sell from 50c to 60c yard. We bought the odd lots of a big importer's stock.

Plaid Organdie, 15c yd

Very sheer goods, 30 inches wide, in five different checks and plaids. Organdie is always popular, and this particular material has proven to be unusually so this season.

12 1-2 and 25c yd. for Persian Lawns

They've been a year getting here, and while we own them at the old prices, the same qualities now have jumped up about forty per cent. over former prices.

White Poplin, 12 1-2c yd

Another case of a fine cotton suiting at a price less than the mills will now take orders. Fine cords—beautiful fabrics for suits or skirts.

Richmond's Leading Dress Goods and Silk Store

We've welcomed thousands of people from all over the South during the past few days, and not a few of them have said in the strongest terms that these departments have no equal in the South.

Buying largely of our Silks and Dress Goods is the way our out-of-town friends have practically expressed their belief.

Hundreds of weaves to select from, but we merely mention a few of the more staple fabrics that are in demand just now.
